Dr Tony Bushati is a highly regarded and fully experienced obstetrician and gynecologist with a patient focused philosophy and a passion for providing the highest quality care in Women's Health.

Dr Bushati completed his intern and residency training at the St George Hospital network and after considering all specialties, he found his niche in Obstetrics and Gynecology. He went on to complete his specialty training through the St George Hospital network which included placements at Royal Women Hospital in Randwick, Sutherland Shire Hospital and Bankstown Hospital.

Bringing his expertise to Northern Beaches Hospital, Dr Bushati has opened his rooms within the hospital facility. He accepts a wide range of patients from high low to high risk obstetrics, simple to complex gynaecological procedures, and pelvic floor repairs.

Dr Bushati held a teaching position at the University of NSW, Faculty of Medicine. He is currently a conjoint lecturer at the University of Sydney, Faculty of Medicine where he teaches medical students as well as the junior doctors in theoretical and practical aspects of medicine.
